

National Advocate Credentialing Program®

Periphery Training Hours Exception Form

Periphery training subject matters are topics that support but are not central to the core functions of victim advocacy. These trainings enhance overall professional growth through related areas such as communication, ethics, self-care, or workplace wellness. While these subjects contribute to an advocate's overall effectiveness, they are considered supplemental rather than core and are limited to 10 hours total, per application, that can be applied toward NACP's continuing education requirements.

Please complete the form below with detailed information if you feel the training title alone does not provide NACP enough context to fully assess the training toward your credential, rather than categorize it as a periphery subject matter.
